From the N. York Daily Advertiser, April 25.

LATEST FROM ENGLAND.

By the arrival yesterday of the ship Ann Maria, capt. Waite, from Liverpool, in 45 days, we have received London papers to the 13th, and Liverpool to the 15th March. These papers are almost exclusively occupied with debates in Parliament, and with accounts from various parts of the kingdom of popular uneasiness, arrests of rioters &c. A meeting was advertised to be held at Manchester, on the 10th March. On the proceeding day, the printer of the notification, and an orator by the name of Johnston, were arrested and lodged in safe custody. The meeting was held, notwithstanding, the next morning, and by 9 o'clock about 9000 persons were assembled. The avowed plan was to march to London, to present petitions for parliamentary reform, and about 1000 actually set out on the journey. Arrangements, however, had been made by the magistrates to interrupt the execution of the project, and about 11 o'clock, whilst the speakers were displaying their oratorial talents, the magistrates, officers and troops, came suddenly upon them, & took the leaders, managers and orators, with all their papers, into safe custody. The ringleaders were sent to prison. Some peace officers, troops, &c. set off after the persons, who had proceeded on their way to London, expecting to be followed by their leaders without money, &c and before night 200 of them were lodged in prison. Several of the principals were sent off to London.

At Glasgow, 14 persons have been committed on the charge of conspiring against the government, and taking an unlawful oath.

Intelligence from China, states lord Amherst was on his way to Canton, without accomplishing the object of his mission.

We also learn that a number of Chinese war boats had made an attack upon the British frigate Alceste, in consequence of some offence which they had taken against the captain. The boats first fired at her with blank cartridge and then with shot. The A. returned the fire, first with powder only, but finding this would not answer, she gave them a few shot—the boats continued to follow. As the frigate advanced, two forts suddenly opened a tremendous cross fire. The wind leading the frigate into the narrow part of the Bogue, capt Maxwell was obliged to make a tack which brought him within pistol shot of the principal fort, mounting 40 guns, when he opened his broadsides to the forts and discharged two in succession—the forts immediately ceased. The frigate pursued her destination without further molestation.

A letter from Smyrna contains the details of the capture of the famous brigand Spiro-Frango-Polo, who has so long desolated the Archipelago. This exploit was performed by the French frigate Galathee, and the brig Zephri. Forty men were sent on shore on the Isle of Moelos, where they surprized the pirate and six of his companions at the break of day.

The Russian Ambassador, count Pozzo di Borgo, has been severely wounded in the head. His horses, by a sudden spring, threw him on the pavement.

An article from Manchester, dated March 11th, gives an account of a meeting there on the 3d inst. who agreed to adjourn to the Monday following, and proceed to London with a petition to the Prince Regent. Aware of what was going on, the proper authorities had taken the necessary precautions. At the time appointed for the meeting, crowds flocked into town from all directions. A stage was erected, and the harangue commenced, but before they began their march, the orators and leaders were seized and imprisoned. Others were seized by the soldiers and sent to prison. In some of their knapsacks were found large knives. The meeti ; is said to have consisted of 30,000, and there had arrived in the course of the day not less than 70,000 individuals. Those who eluded the soldiers by taking obscure routs, succeeded in penetrating to the bridge of Stockport; here they were encountered by a troop of the Life Guards, and the Prince Regent's yeomanry. No attempt was made to force the bridge, but many threw themselves into the river, and crossed it where it was fordable. Two hundred were apprehended, some of whom had provided themselves with a blanket and a few days provisions.

Accounts from China state that cotton was upon the decline. Opium in general went for 1420 to 1431 dollars. Turkey opium had began to drop in, and fetched from 850 to 900 dollars per pecul. A large importation was expected in the company's and United States vessels. Tutenage was up at 15 tales per pecul.

Charleston, April 22.

VERY LATE FROM FRANCE.

The fast sailing French brig Three Sisters, Capt. Moizeau, arrived here yesterday, in 36 days from Nantz, which port she left on the 15th of March. Capt. M brought no Nantz papers, but informs us that there was nothing new or interesting in circulation when he sailed. A commercial friend has politely favoured the editors with a file of the Paris Journals to the last of Feb. inclusive, from which we have made some extracts for this day's Gazette.

The markets have improved a little, as will be seen by an extract below, being the latest that we have obtained.

Madame de Stall was dangerously ill of a billious fever, at Paris.

Extract of a letter from Nantz, dated March 4, received by the Three Sisters.

"Cotton is likely to rise; best quality Sea-Islands has been sold at 330f. but this kind is little demanded. Upland goes off at 220f. a 225f. and Louisaina at 235f, a 240. Louisiana is quoted from Paris and Havre, at 250f and much in demand this year. Rice is now selling here at 55f. Brandy is rather declining, as there is no demand for exportation. Dry goods can be had on good terms, and I expect will rise with you, as there will be but few shipments."

TRANSLATIONS

From Paris papers received at this office, by the Three Sisters

PARIS, Feb 27.

Prefecture of the Department of the Seine. Notice to persons liable to taxation, Paris, 22d Feb. 1817.

The time being at hand when the monthly contributions for the year 1817 become due, the Prefect of this Department thinks it his duty to impress upon all persons liable therefor, and particularly upon owners of landed property, the obligation which the law imposes upon them, punctually to settle the amount they are required to pay monthly. They must be aware that the divisions of these contributions in 12 monthly payments, renders the statement easy, and that the wants of the Treasury imperiously demand their compliance

The Prefect flatters himself that the contributors, animated by the desire of proving their devotion to our most gracious majesty, by the observance of the laws, will eagerly step forward to discharge the 2d monthly payment of 1817, in the early part of next month.

February 28.

We understand from Bordeaux, that the administration of the Marine has just discovered an excellent anchoring ground, between Bayonne & Cape Breton. This discovery is of great importance, particularly in the dangerous coasting trade of the Landes, where for a space of 20 leagues, vessels could heretofore find no secure place to anchor.

St. Petersburg, Jan 28.

There being but little exporting trade from this place, a very sensisible dimunition has been the result, in the prices of the products of our country, as hemp. linseed oil, and potash. Considerable business is carried on with rye, and the price holds well. Wheat and flax are falling in price. Not much can be done in importations until the rigor of the season is some degree abated, to allow a free communication between the provinces.

LONDON MARKETS.

Tuesday March 11.

Cotton—There was considerable interest exeited in the market last week by the India Company having declared nearly 8000 Bengals for Friday last, and as this description of cotton has of late been brought forward for sale very extensively, it was anticipated that a great reduction in the prices would take place; the trade from the manufacturing districts and the shippers had in consequence given extensive orders; the whole went off freely, and generally 1-2d to 1-8d per lb. higher than what had been expected—62 bags very good DT at 12 1-8d to 12 1-2d; 1994 bags for DT and good common 10 1-2d to 11d; averaging rather above 10 3-4d; 3990 bags very ordinary to fair common 9 1-2d to 10 3-4d; averaging 10d; 274 bags damaged 5d to 11d; 2 bags from fine seed 18 1-4d to 18 7-8d. The whole af course, subject to the duty of 1d per lb. if used for home consumption; above a third was reported to be taken for exportation.

The purchases otherwise was also extensive, when the low stock of every description, except India, is considered: the sales were estimated to exceed 1600 packages; 200 Pernams 2s to 2s 1-4d, 40 boweds 19 1-2d, 450 Demeraras, chiefly good quality, at 22 3-4d, the other prices 19 1-2 to 23 1-2d. 500 surats ordinary to fair Bengals 19d to 20 3-4d, and 70 good DT 12d. The Bengals and Surats were sold in the warehouse at the price we have stated.

The arrivals from America, both at Liverpool and London, continue exceedingly limited, notwithstanding the prevalence of westerly winds—if they are not extensive and immediate, we may expect brisk and rising market in the usual spring season, and easterly winds may be soon expected, and will probably be for a continuance of at least some weeks.

Irish Provisions, &c. Beef continues in good demand, and there is little doubt of its maintaining a high currency throughout the season. Mess Pork in steady request; the demand for vessels clearing for the fisheries has been very considerable. There has been little business doing in bacon, the prices are a shade lower. The stocks of butter are not extensive; the market prices continue steady; some holders are however anticipating an advance.

Tobacco.—The prices of tobacco entirely depend on the quantity wanted by the French government; it is understood they would contract for 2000 hhds. on the 10th inst.; the particulars will be in London this week. It a further supply is wanted on the 15th April, as has been anticipated, and as the French government have in some measure announced, it will no doubt greatly affect the market; the holders under these circumstances shew no inclination to effect sales at present, more especially as it is understood that the late contractors are not prepared to furnish the quantity stipulated; for one or two London houses take privately very low parcels as they can produce them. About 600 hogsheads very indifferent tobacco are stated to have lately been thus disposed off—the prices since our last cannot be stated at any variation.

Ashes.—By public sale, 312 barrels Quebec pot ashes of a middling quality, 56s 6d to 57s 6d, a few lots 52s to 55s.

REVOLUTION IN BRAZIL.

By a gentleman who arrived here in the brig Herald, from Barbadoes, we are informed, that the Province of Pernambuco (in Brazil) had revolted, and declared itself independent of the Brazillian Government. Our informant, who is a resident of the town of Pernambuco, which place he left on the 13th March, states, that this revolution was brought about by the concurrence of the military with the citizens, on the 6th of March. It commenced at the barracks, where a Colonel of Artillery attempting to put some officers of the regiment stationed there, under arrest, one of them ran him through with a sword; and the principal aid-de-camp of the Governor arriving and endeavoring to harrangue the troops, he was instantly shot. A general beat to arms ensued, the militia were called out, but they, as also a promiscously armed population (as various in its character as its color) joined the military, and by five o'clock in the evening, this armed multitude was in possession of the town; when patroles and guards were immediately established to prevent individual plunder and violence. The governor and the heads of the Provincial Government, had taken refuge in the principal fort, which was given up without opposition early the following morning to the popular party. On the morning of the 9th March, the governor and his suit embarked for Rio Jeneiro, being also permitted to carry his personal property along with him.

On Friday the 7th of March, a provisional government was adopted, consisting of five distinct executive departments, viz. one for Judiciary, one for Commerce, one for agriculture, one for country, as hemp. linseed oil, and potash. Considerable business is carried on with rye, and the price holds well. Wheat and flax are falling in price. Not much can be done in importations until the rigor of the season is some degree abated, to allow a free communication between the provinces.

Military and one for Ecclesiastical affairs; the chiefs of these departments having the title of "Patriotic Governors" The officers of the old government retained their places under the new order of things, with one or two exceptions of voluntary resignations.

The tidings of the revolution spread from the town to the interior, with the rapidity of lightning, and inspired the most enthusiastic joy among the proprietors and planters, who were daily arriving in town for the purpose of declaring their unalterable adherence to the popular cause. Those who held public situations either civil or military under the former government, were among the first to come forward and tender their adhesion to their new rulers.

With the exception of the Colonel of artillery and the aid de camp before spoken of, no person of any note was killed; a few lives was lost among the straggling parties unconnected with the main body, caused rather by thoughtlessness and imprudence than from a deliberate wish to commit violence; but as soon as the government was formed, every precaution was taken to protect persons and property, and all arms were collected and put into the possession of the government.

On the 13th of March, perfect harmony and tranquility prevailed; but Portuguese property or vessels were not allowed to leave the port. Preparations were making to place the forts and other points of defence in an effective state, and the pay of the military was considerably augmented.

It is believed that as soon as they deem it expedient to adopt a permanent system o government, they will choose that of the United States for their model. In the mean time they have forwarded despatches to our government, which are understood to contain a minute narrative of their proceedings and views; soliciting an acknowledgment of their independence, and inviting an intercourse with them upon the most liberal and friendly terms. Similar communications have also been forwarded to London, for the consideration of the British government.

New York April 22.

The elegant peice of Brass ordinance, landed on Buchanan's wharf west side of Rutger's slip, was brought from Virginia, where it has remained in the bottom of York river since the American revolution. It was lately raised by means of a diving bell, in four fathom's water, partly imbedded in the sand. It appears to be no way injured, corroded or incrusted, by lying between thirty or forty years on the sandy bottom of the river.

It is stated to have been lost before or about the taking of Cornwal is at York, by (GENERAL WASHINGTON.) The slings gave way while lowering the cannon into the scow, intended to convey it to the shore; by its enormous weight burst the scow asunder, and went to the bottom.

Upon examining the peice it was found to measure 11 feet 10 inches in length, and its calibre capable of carrying a thirty two pound ball.

It is elegantly carved about the butt and other places, and contains several inscriptions and devices, on the upper part near the muzzle, are the words, "De Tertisant, which appear to have been meant as a name for the piece and may be properly translated, The Sportsman—below that are the latin words, ulti ma ratio regum." royal logic, or literally translated, The last resort of Kings, further on is inscribed, "Mareschal De Humieries, "with a coat of arms probably of that general. Beneath that are the latin words "pluribus nec impar." This inscription would seem to convey the value of ordnance when compared with small arms and would therefore be considered, by translation, as Equal to many small arms. Around the butt of the cannon are carved the words, "Kelleri Tiguro. Helvetii F. Duir 1680," which may be rendered thus: "Keller Tigure. (or Tigurus) of Switzerland made this piece of ordinance at Douay, in 1680.

By these inscriptions, it appears that the piece is 137 years old, and was cast by a Swiss at the celebrated foundry of Douay in the French Netherlands, established by Lewis the 14th, when in the height of his glory, he endeavoured to subjugate and control all Europe. Humieries was one of his generals, and probably from the esteem of his sovereign, had the liberty of inscribing his name upon this peice, attached to his division of the army. Marshal Humeries was beat at Walcourt, in 1689 by the allied armies, under the prince of Waldec.

SAMUEL AKERLY.

Since writing the above, the cannon has been removed to the coffee house. It is worthy the attention of the state or the United States, and ought to be purchased by one or the other of them.

LATEST FROM N. ORLEANS.

We have seen a letter from New Orleans, of the 29th ultimo, which states that the late tumults had blown over. A Grand Jury who had been impannelled on the 28th to pass upon the offences charged against the assailants of the British ship, had returned into court without finding bills for any of the several offences which had been alledged.

It is erroneously stated, in some of the Eastern papers, that an act was passed at the late session of Congress, to alter the flag of the U. S. so as to ordain one stripe for each of the original states, and one star for each existing state in the confederacy. Such a proposition was before Congress, but was not acted on. The flag remains yet as heretofore fixed by law. Nat. Intelligencer.

It gives us sincere pleasure to be able to state, that D. A. Smith Esq. whose credit as we learn, has experienced a temporary embarrassment, is now enabled by the liberal aid of the Directors of the office of Discount & Deposit in this city, to proceed to meet his payments with punctuality—we feel it due to Mr. Smith, as well as to the credit of the Mechanic's Bank, of which he has long been an active officer, to declare, and we do it on the authority of the Directors, that the claims of the Bank on Mr. Smith have been entirely liquidated.

We are assured that Mr. Smith's means are abundant to pay his debts, and all who know him are perfectly satisfied of his disposition to do so. It is indeed to be regretted, that any suspension should have taken place, because it is believed to have been unnecessary. If Mr. Smith had consulted his friends, he could readily have obtained every necessary assistance, and no man could have claimed such assistance with more justice; as it is well known, that he has always been too willing to extend his aid to all classes of his fellow-citizens.

ALEXANDRIA:

TUESDAY, APRIL 29, 1817.

The most heinous crime of which republics accuse monarchic governments, which infidelity imputes to religion and each particular religious sect imputes to the others, is INTOLERANCE. So very unjust and detestable is that vice of our nature, that every person, party & sect endeavors to fasten it on their respective adversaries, as the most odious of stigmas. The admirers of monarchic government, however, for even it has its admirers—are not so ignorant of what passes in republics, as not to know that they may return the compliment to republics with this truth, by way of interest upon it, that in the latter, intolerance is the vice of the whole compound population, not confined, as in the former, to the governing few, but diffusing its corruption through every individual's heart.—In this young republic they might affirm with truth that from a particular period in the administration of John Adams—that is to say from the ninth or tenth year of its existence, up to the conclusion of the late war, a spirit of the most ungovernable intolerance has raged, with fury unsurpassed, embittering life, polluting morals, and envenoming the hearts of our fellow-citizens against each other—steeling them against every tender charity, withering the social affections, and nourishing in every bosom a base, dishonest selfishness which threatened to divide the people into two distinct and hostile denominations, and to make one the despotic ruler over the other.

It is a deplorable subject of reflection that this systematic outrage upon each other's rights was continually augmented by opposition to it, and that every attempt to struggle with it, produced the same vindictive rage in the dominating power, that rebellion against the sovereign produces in monarchies;—in a word, that nothing could procure for the vanquished party a restoration to their dividend in the government or their full rights as citizens, but their ceasing to insist upon them.—Succumb!—give up your arms! and then you may be restored to favor was the word to the Scotch rebels in 1715 and 1745.—And so it would be here, if certain gaping expectants of office (who, like those half-starved pettifoggers that prowl about the seaports of the old countries to promote litigation and fleece the litigants, would fain live by the dissentions of their fellow citizens) had the power to perpetuate those ruinous and disgraceful divisions among our people.—It is to be hoped however, and it is believed that sentiments of a different kind and more worthy of the chosen chief magistrate of a free and generous people, now hold the binacle and direct the helm—and that the dismal night which has so long surrounded us, will soon be succeeded by a cheering day; for already the twilight of tolerance breaks on the horizon and gives promise that the people of this country will, without distinction of party or of sect, alike partake of the genial warmth of its rays—a blessing from which we should be sorry to exclude even that "Republican" who has been so angry with the president for taking the interdiction off the federalists.

Intolerance has produced more error and more evil in the world, perhaps, than all the other mischievous dispositions of our species. Of the truth of this position, the histories of all nations from their earliest records up to the present hour are but so many close-linked chains of evidence and illustration. The practical examples of it, afforded by the living world, are as thickly set around us as the stars in the firmament; we inveigh against it, we deplore it; in the enthusiasm of our cheap zeal we beat the air with angry declamation against it when practised by others; while, among ourselves there are not wanting those who would keep it alive for ever—or at least till it fully answered their own selfish purposes.—Those men would treat the virtue of tolerance as our insatiably avaricious monopolizers, in this time of scarcity, treat our bread stuffs—export all to foreign countries, and starve their fellow citizens at home. They can hang the head in sorrow (like weeping willows without shedding a tear) over the intolerance of the British government and its interdict upon the Irish Catholics—because, good souls! they are citizens of the world, and the relief of that sect would cost them nothing: but what toleration they would grant them, if the Catholics were candidates for the offices of emoluments to which they aspired, is sufficiently evident from the discontent they express at the liberality of the president to certain federalists. The motives in both cases are easily seen through.

The only way to get rid of this hateful spirit of intolerance is to learn to know ourselves—for he who knows himself truly will be convinced that he has at least as much to censure in himself as to excuse in his neighbor, and that, exclusive of the repose it will produce in his bosom to be in charity with his fellow creatures, he may be a considerable gainer by mutual toleration. Humility is the deep laid root of all the virtues—it presents the truest mirror to our eyes—and in proportion to the fidelity of the image we see of ourselves, will be the resemblance of that which we draw of our neighbor: for as all things are estimable or otherwise by comparison, we shall be more likely to do justice to others by ceasing to overrate ourselves. On a due examination the best and wisest of us all will often find occasion to pay more deference to the opinions of others and less to his own, and to be convinced that on any doubtful subject other men may think and act differently from his ideas of right & wrong, and yet judge as wisely and decide as conscientiously as himself.

CURIO.

THE LATE INTELLIGENCE.

The news received by the Comet, captain Center, is of considerable importance, especially that which relates to the internal state of Great Britain. The disturbances which have, for some time past, taken place in that nation, had extended to various parts of the kingdom, and had begun to put on a more serious appearance. By the reports in the two houses of parliament, it would seem, that a plot had been laid, by whom does not appear, of the most desperate character—being nothing less than to subvert the government. As none of the names of the leaders are mentioned in any account that we have seen, we are left to conjecture its origin. The probability is, that designing and factious characters, taking advantage of the distresses of lower classes of the people, and having views of a daring kind, by clamoring loudly against the government, and in favour of a parliamentary reform, have stirred them up to madness; for nothing short of madness, unless it may be the extreme of folly, could ever expect to succeed in Great Britain in a scheme to sequester property; to extinguish the public funds—to ridicule out of credit and out of existence the church liturgy, and the scriptures—and to put down the royal family. Such, however, are stated to be the desperate objects of an unfuriated, unarmed, and unmanageable populace. The measures of the revolutionists had become so threatening as to produce a suspension of the habeas corpus act; an important step, but one which has often been resorted to in that nation. The ministerial majority appears to be strong in the house of commons, 273 to 98. That a good many lives will fall a sacrifice to these violent proceedings, cannot be doubted. It would be fortunate if the penalty of the law should fall upon the ringleaders, instead of their ignorant and deluded followers.

It is not to be supposed, that the great body of substantial inhabitants in that island, will be easily brought to adopt the plan of a revolution, as a remedy for the difficulties under which they labor. They have had the benefit of experience, on this subject, in the course of their own history, and its lessons can hardly be eradicated from their minds in the space of a hundred and fifty years. Besides, they know what have been the effects of that prescription for diseases in the body politic in other nations, by very recent examples. When the mob of London begin to hoist the tri-colored cockade, and to procure pikes, it would be wonderful, indeed, if any clamor for reform in the system of representation, should induce them to plunge into the tremendous crater of the revolutionary Etna, for a relief from distresses which they must know spring from another source, and which though severe, they have every reason to expect will not prove permanant. N. Y. Daily Adv.

New York, April 26.

Extract of a letter from Rathbone, Hodgson & Co, dated Liverpool, 15th March, 1817, to a respectable house in this city.

"Orders have this morning been received at our Custom-House to allow the importation of rice from foreign countries free of all duty; & on rice at present in bond no duty is to be exacted. The price is still unsettled, and no considerable sales have been made, except of 100 casks yesterday at 45s. per cwt, which might afterwards have been replaced at 43 a 44s. Little is doing in flour which is sold at 30s. Cotton is steady at 19 a 20d. for upland, 2s 2d. to 2s. 6d. for sea Island, and 23s for good fair Orleans. In other articles there is no alteration.

From the Georgetown Messenger.

The following account of the riot in Orleans, is extracted from the Louisiana Gazette. We are indebted for it to the politeness of lieut. Weaver, of our navy, who assures us it is substantially correct. Lieutenant W. was present in the city at the time it occurred:—

THE RIOT.

We have delayed giving a detail of the disgraceful scene witnessed in our city on Tuesday last, that we might be enabled to lay before our readers as full and as fair a statement as the nature of the case admits. We were the more impelled to this course because we did not believe that the people of our city would, upon any occasion be induced to commit acts so degrading to society—and we did not wish to confound the innocent with the guilty. We are now happy to have it in our power to say that scarcely a single Creole of Louisiana is in any way implicated in this outrageous prostration of our laws.

The following statement, we believe will be found to be substantially correct: an English ship and a French one are lying alongside each other at the levee and are both of them loading.—On Monday last a dispute arose between the officers about the stage leading to the levee, but we believe proceeded no further than binding the English Captain to keep the peace. After this however, it was discovered that his vessel's vanes had a tri-coloured tail, and this it was industriously propagated, was intended as an insult to the French part of the community; it was immediately seized upon by a certain class of persons long known in the vicinity, whose purposes it suited.—It should here be remarked that the English ship, the (HAMILTON) has been three weeks in port, has had these obnoxious vanes flying ever since, yet the insult was not discovered until this dispute about the stage took place.

On Tuesday early in the day, a number of persons collected on the levee near the ship, and a little while after the mayor went on board and ordered the vanes to be taken down. The Captain remonstrated, but finally they were taken down by another person.

Captain Colshed then sent to the commanding naval officer to know whether they were considered offensive to the American Government—he was of course, answered in the negative—upon which they were again hoisted. From the moment they re appeared a mob began to collect, and continued to increase rapidly. Between two and three the mayor again appeared, but remained some time a mere spectator of the preparations which were making on board the vessels, which being completed about five, a number of men marched up the stage and the vessel was taken possession of after a trifling resistance.—A seamen was murdered, the mate of the ship and four of the crew severly wounded; the rioters then tore down the vanes, cut away the rigging, chopped the main and mizen masts, broke the sky light, through which they fired several pistols into the cabin in which were, we are informed the British Consul, the captain of the ship and several other persons; and when they could find nothing else on which to vent their spleens, they gallantly tied a monkey's chain round his neck and threw it over board, and most magnanimously cut an English duck's head off.

What they would have found next to indulge their malice on, or where they would have stopped it is impossible to say, had not Col. Renolds, the martial, went down to head quarters to request military assistance to preserve the peace of the city. A part of the 8th United States Infantry were marched up with a celerity that reflects honor on the officers—but the rioters apprized of their approach, made their escape, except 2 or 3 who were taken by the military. Several more have since been arrested and are now confined.

A guard remained on board all night to protect the vessel from further damage.

We have here stated the prominent causes and effects of this shameful affair. We refrain from the expression of those feelings naturally excited by it, because the case of the prisoners will soon be tried by their country. As regards others a committee of the city council is now engaged in sifting the affair to the bottom. The general opinion has strongly pointed at a man high in station in our local administration as criminally neglectful of the solemn duties for which he was specially chosen and was sworn to execute. If this enquiry is made in the spirit of truth, however it may terminate, our citizens will be satisfied and people abroad fully informed of the facts? but if any unfair means are used to evade it, it will remain a stain on the character of New Orleans, that all the waters of her Mississippi cannot bleach until this enquiry is closed, we shall suspend further remarks—Nor should we now have touched on it but to prevent misrepresentations from going abroad.

OBITUARY.

Departed this life, on the 25th inst. after a lingering illness WM. J. VEITCH, the only son of capt. James Veitch, formerly a resident of Maryland. He was 15 years of age, had a strong faith in Christ and talked much of Heaven and Heavenly things. In his illness, a short time before he expired, when surrounded by many friends, he appeared to be strengthened by a supernatural power, he called his friends to his bed, and bid them all farewell, shaking them by the hand, telling them, at the same time, he hoped to meet them in a better world. Also requested his father, to bid his friends in Maryland farewell—that he knew he should meet them all that proved faithful in Heaven. He then said, I am done, and expired. He has left behind him, a tender father, mother and sister, to lament his loss.

The Paradise of Coquettes,

A POEM, in nine Parts.

A second edition of this elegant Poem is just published and for sale by the Subscribers.

The character of this Poem is thus given by the Quarterly and Edinburgh Reviewers:—

The Paradise of Coquettes;

The character in which the poet professes to speak, is that of the POET OF WOMAN. He is supposed to be addressing woman, and woman only, and addressing her, 'on adventures of which she is the heroine, and on charms and graces, which it is the whole history of her beauty to have exercised with failure or success.'

His incontestible merits, and the assiduous care which he has bestowed upon the poem, deserve the warmest praise.

Quarterly Review, Oct. 1814.

We have here a little volume which may be fairly regarded as a prodigy in this age of quarto ballads, romances, heroics, and sentimental simplicity. It is by far the best and most brilliant imitation of Pope, that has appeared since the time of that great writer; with all his point, polish, and nicely-balanced versification, as well as his sarcasm and witty malice. He is always at home—always lively and entertaining.

His satire is polished and yet pungent.

His versification, in particular, is almost invariably flowing & harmonious.

Edinburgh Review, Feb. 1815.

"A vein of polite irony runs through the 'Paradise of Coquettes' which was familiar to the writers of the age of Anne and George the First, but has been discarded in making other modern improvements, by our cotemporaries."

James Kennedy & Son.
